

"SCORNFUL NAMES" FOR RANGERS OF THE NORTH

"Travellers scowl at us, and countrymen give us scornful names. 'Strider' I am to one fat man who lives within a day's march of foes that would freeze his heart, or lay his little town in ruin, if he were not guarded ceaselessly. Yet we would not have it otherwise. If simple folk are free from care and fear, simple they will be, and we must be secret to keep them so."

— Aragorn, The Fellowship of The Ring

NICKNAMES

Rangers were given names by the various people groups of Eriador due to their deep-seated suspicion of them. The Rangers would begrudgingly use these names to keep their true identity hidden. If you're having trouble coming up with a nickname, the following table can be used to quickly come up with one for your Ranger. It's fitting to use this nickname table during character creation, as one doesn't often have the choice to pick their own nickname. Especially among a people group who hold the Rangers in mistrust. Alternatively, you can pick one from the table based on your character's background, what others believe about your character and what they have potentially been accused of - most likely a perspective that has been influenced by the likes of John Ferny and his accomplices.
